From that time on a fruitless search has been kept up for the boy, and present time all of Indianapolis is ookout for him. A few moments before the boy went away two Italians with a grind-organ and a monkey were playing along the street, and a crowd of children following them. It was at first thought that the Kendall child had followed them off and, getting a long distance away from home, could not find his way Both of the Italians were arrested yesterday. Neither one, according to his statement, saw the missing child at any time. They are still locked up at the police station, and will be tried before Judge Whallon of the Police Court this morning on a loitering charge, and will be held longer if it is believed after trial that they snow anything about the disappearance

It was suggested yesterday that every citizen of Indianapolis who has a home or place of business search every foot of his premises from the cellar of his house the out-houses and sheds, and in all aces where tall grass and weeds may be found a special search should be made. The police and other searchers have by no means given up hope, but the case is considered one of the most complicated and puzzling mysteries that has come to public attention for some time.

HOW TO GET FUEL CHEAPER THAN PRESENT RATE OF GAS.

City Council to Act on Proposition to Furnish Gas at Meter Rate of 25 Cents Per 1,000 Feet.

CHURCH AT ANDERSON

BRETHREN CONGREGATION.

Physicians Given Permission to Exhume John Tinsley's Body for Scientific Purposes.

Special to the Indiapapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 9.-The gas question will be settled by the City Council to-morrow night. Never has a city been so troubled with a perplexing question as the one which now confronts the City Council, and with which the committees have been wrestling for some time. The whole sum and substance of the situation is this: | in 1855 The gas company has asked the City Council for the privilege of installing meters for natural gas in houses of patrons, and paying in cash for the meters already in use, and for the right to raise the price of gas from 15 cents a thousand feet to 25 cents. The meter question is settled so far ler. The public is divided on the question, the majority being in favor of the meter and the advance. Those who are willing to give up the flat rate for a meter and pay for what they get feel that the Lafayago. In all that time gas has been furnished to patrons on payment by the month. Of late years the natural gas has cost (flat rate) consumers $1.50 a month for four summer months and $2.85 for the winter months. Last winter there was little or no supply, and those who were using by the month protested that they were paying for that which they did not get. The gas company inspectors found many homes where the mixers had been removed from the valve and the flow had been increased in volume, and the officials racked their brain to defeat this practice. With the only avenue open to them, and with the over the city, the gas company has sug-gested the meter. The only concession asked is the advance of 10 cents on the The gas company officials state they must keep three different pumping stations busy all the time to furnish this city with gas, and it is not nearly as cheap to transmit as if the city were nearer the wells, and, therefore, the cost of supplying the gas being heavy the charge to the consumers should be made to meet that cost. In the contract between the gas company and the city the company is given power to shut off that section of the city where there is a partial failure of the gas, and some hold that the gas people will take advantage of this clause and shut off the gas where there is no meter measurement. Prof. W. F. M. Goss, of Purdue University, was called before the committee appointed by the Council to take up the gas question and he said that burning gas by meter measurement all winter was cheaper at 25 cents a thousand than the burning of coal at the current price. He also said that a man would be thrown into bankruptcy if he attempts to burn wood all winter at the abnormally high price. The committee has met and the committee has adjourned time after time, with no conclusion. Officials of the Lafayette Gas Company have been called in; experts from Purdue have been interviewed, and prominent business men have been seen, but all to no avail, and the matter was left to the action of the Council as a whole. While the committee was considering the matter and the people were talking gas, constituents visited their councilmanic representatives and induced them to take one stand or another against the bill, and when the session is called to order to-morrow night the Council will be hopelessly divided on the question, although it is thought that ultimately the meter with a 25-cent rate will be adopted. Councilman Hudlow, Republican from the Seventh ward, is not here, and will not be here at the meeting, and the lack of his vote may change the whole tide of the evening.

TO PREVENT ACCIDENTS.

Interurban Car Conductors Instructed to Flag Every Crossing.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ANDERSON, Ind., Aug. 9 .- The interurban company is taking extra precautions to prevent a recurrence of wrecks similar to those which proved so annoying last week. New regulations have been given to the motormen and conductors and all the train operatives have been cautioned and drilled very carefully concerning the running regulations. The conductors have been requested to flag every crossing between Muncie and Indianapolis. The railway crossing near West Muncie, where a disastrous wreck occurred a year ago, is being very carefully guarded, and so likewise is the crossing west of this city where last week's unfortunate accident happened. George Klein, of Muncie, the chief watch inspector, has been in Anderson and inspected the watches of all the men, and he instructed deputy inspectors along the company's lines to pay particular attention to this feature. An effort is made to have as near absolute time as possible, and this feature in itself is regarded as one of the safest precautions. The new schedule went into effect to-day and the new "limited trains" between Anderson and Marion were

Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DUNKIRK, Ind., Aug. 9.-The worst fire this city has had in many years started in the Dunkirk Lumber Company's main building this afternoon at 1 o'clock, destroying the entire plant, two dwellings and a blacksmith shop. Before the firemen reached the scene the building was a mass of flames. A flerce west wind was blowing, driving the flames before it, and for a time it looked as if the entire eastern part of the city was doomed, but the wind changed its course and further spread of the fire was prevented. The Pennsylvania freight depot, elevator, several other dwellings and box cars caught on fire, but were saved by the bucket brigade. The firemen were greatly handicapped by the fierce wind and intense heat. Following are the losses and insurance: Dunkirk Lumber Company, owned by Mercer & Co., Chicago, stock and buildings, $16,000, partly covered by insurance. William Sherry, residence, $500, no insurance. Thomas Mendenhall, residence, $700; insurance, $400. John Thomas, blacksmith shop, $600.

special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Aug. 9.-A scheme will be inaugurated in this county in a few weeks whereby the hoboes' paradise will become a worse place than purgatory for the "weary Willies." Tippecanoe county is shown by the report of the secretary of the State Board of Charities to be the second county in the State in the number of tramps sheltered during the past year. In 1901 this county headed the list. Seldom does a day pass but two or three tramps are sent to jail for vagrancy. It costs the county money, and there is no return. Now the County a revolutionary movement. Commissioners are considering the advisability of adopting methods compelling inmates of the county jail to work. The scheme is to compel the prisoners who are in for vagrancy and like charges to do the work about the jail and dispense with the regular help. Other jobs will be added from time to time, and the jallbirds will be given credit for the amount of work they do. At circus time and during a carnival the jail is filled with suspicious-looking enjoying the greatest building boom in her strangers, and thus a low standard of crime is maintained in this city, though it costs to continue the preventive. Some time ago James Pattee, the turnkey at the jail, started a system of work among the jailbirds, and he sent one Alexander, who stole a typewriter, to the office early in the morning. Pattee handed Alexander a mop and told him to earn his breakfast by mopping the office floor. Alexander, who had been looked upon as a trusty, walked out of the door and was never seen at the

Norman enjoyed himself hugely. He struck the newspaper men at the capital as being a fine fellow, but they found he was a trifle slow in appreciating the jokes and stories that were told at their gatherings. One night as he sat in the Press Club two or three correspondents decided to try him out. Karl Decker was chosen as the spokesman. Decker took a little bell from one of the tables and walked over to Norman. "Mr. Norman," he said, "I have been delegated by my fellow-club members to say to you that we have thoroughly enjoyed your visit. We consider you a fine type of the English newspaper man. Before you go, and as a testimonial of our friendship and esteem, we have decided to present you a slight remembrance, and on behalf of the club I am instructed to give you this ring." As Decker said "ring" he tapped the bell smartly and placed it on the table. Norman was surprised. He hemmed and hawed a bit, but then pulled himself to-gether and said: "Mr. Decker and the members of the National Press Club: I can hardly find words to thank you. I have enjoyed my visit here greatly. I shall always cherish pleasant memories of Washington. I am overwhelmed at this evidence of your comradeship. Norman went on like that for five minutes. He made a very clever little speech Then he said: "I am pleased to receive your gift, but, as is only natural, I suppose Mr. Decker, in the embarrassment of the moment, for we newspaper men are notoriously poor speakers, has given me a bell in-stead of a ring."

Elmer Cochran, 1911 Columbia Avenue, Unfolds a Tale of Hard Luck.

The combined wrath of a mother-inlaw, a brother-in-law and a sister-in-law was spent upon the head and face of Elmer Cochran, 1911 Columbia avenue, last night, and it was necessary for him to be taken to the City Dispensary, where several bad cuts and bruises were dressed by Dr. Sheek. Cochran said he was standing on the corner of College avenue and Twenty-seventh street talking to his relatives, who had always before been of the most loving disposition when suddenly and without warning his sister-in-law struck him in the back of the head with some heavy instrument and knocked him to the ground. He was soon on his feet, he said, but his mother-James Martin, convicted of murder; L. L. in-law jumped upon his shoulders and held with a knife. Cochran said that his brother-in-law, Edgar Bird, lived with his wife and mother, Mrs. P. E. Daily, at 1908 Columbia avenue, and he was unable to think of any reason for the assault they made upon him. Late last night two patrolmen were sent to the home of Bird to investigate the charge made by Cochran, but up to an early hour this morning they had made no arrests. Cochran was arrested by Bicyclemen Trimpe and Lowe and locked up at the down by a horseman and brought back to police station last night on a charge of as-jail. Two posses were organized and are sault and battery and will be held until his story has been investigated.

To Die of Paralysis Like Father.

Helpless Invalid For Three Years.

Dr. Miles' Nervine Made My Nerves Strong.

"For many years I suffered from terrible headaches and pains at the base of the brain, and finally got so bad that I was overcome with nervous prostration. I had frequent dizzy spells and was so weak and exhausted that I could take but little food. The best physicians told me I could not live; that I would die of paralysis, as my father and grandfather had. I remained a helpless invalid for three years, when I heard of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and began using it. That winter I felt better than I had before in many years, and I have not been troubled with those dreadful headaches since I first used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

My appetite is good and my nerves are strong."—Mrs. N. M. Bucknell, 2929 Oakland Ave., Minneapolis, Minn.
"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration, and could not direct my household affairs, nor have any cares. My stomach was very weak, headaches very severe, and I was so nervous that there was not a night in years that I slept over one hour at a time. We spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicine. I was taken to Chicago and treated by specialists, but received no benefit at all. Finally I heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began its use. I was surprised that it helped me so quickly, and great was my joy to find, after using seven bottles, that I had fully recovered my health."—Mrs. W. A. Thompson, Duluth,

RETURNED UNEXPECTEDLY.

Morris Haas, Son of Dr. Joseph Haas Surprises His Parents.

Morris Haas, the nineteen-year-old son of Dr. Joseph Haas, 2001 North Delaware street, was found wandering on the streets last night about 11 o clock and taken to the police station. He seemed confused and unable to give a coherent account of his actions. His father was notified and at first refused to believe that his son could be at the station, as he said the boy was in Europe and was not expected home for some time. The boy was taken home and later his father explained the affair by saying that the boy had gone to Europe with a party of students from Howe Miliary Academy two months ago. Dr. Mc-Kenzie, the principal of the school, was in charge. According to their itinerary they were not to arrive in New York on the return for two or three days yet, and for this reason he at first refused to believe that his son was in the city last night.

SHE WILL BE A DETECTIVE.

Woman Whose Task Is to Search the Earth for Lost Husband.

Philadelphia Record Determined to fathom the mystery of her susband's disappearance, after the London detectives had acknowledged their failure, the wife of William H. Brennan yesterday left this city to sail for Europe to-day. For more than two years Mrs. Brennan has been spending large sums of money to as-certain what has become of her husband, and, while Scotland Yard detectives have hinted at foul play in the affair, the wom-an has never lost faith in the ultimate dis-covery of her husband's whereabouts. To convince herself and friends she has now started out as her own detective. Mr. Brennan left his West Philadelphia home, at No. 4369 Leidy avenue, over two years ago, to inspect some mining property in South Africa for what he was led to believe was a prominent English syndicate. He is one of the best-known mining engineers of this country, and was promised a large fee for his work. The so-called syndicate having given him a big check for his expenses, he started for a remote mining district in South Africa. Some months later Mrs. Brennan received a letter from him from London, in which he informed her that he had found the property extremely rich in precious ore and that he had succeeded in getting "in on the ground floor" for several thousand dollars. This sum he drew from a local bank, and later he wrote that he had refurned to the mines. From subsequent correspondence it was earned that after the investment Brennan discovered that he had been swindled, his syndicate having no title to the property. He then left South Africa and spent some time in London trailing down the men who had fleeced him. After six weeks' search in the English metropolis the American min-ing engineer located his men and promptly had them arrested. In all this time there was no break in his kept posted in all the details of the affair. The day following the arrest of the parties charged with the swindle Brennan disap-

his luggage was found at his lodgings in Large sums have been expended by Mrs. Brennan in keeping up the search, has proven futile. In the last report from the London detectives, while they admit that they have utterly failed, they cling to the theory that Brennan was the victim of foul play. It is their opinion that confederates of the English swindlers put the troublesome American out of the way, and in that manner have rescued their pals from what apparently was an ugly affair Mrs. Brennan, on the receipt of this discouraging news, refused to give up hope. She promptly informed her friends that she was going to try her hand at detective work, and became so enthusiastic in the belief that she would successfully solve the mystery that she instilled confidence in others. She left yesterday morning for New York, where she will, this morning, embark on a steamer for Liverpool. She said, before leaving Philadelphia, that if necessary she would go to the mines in South Africa to take up the trail, and that she would not rest until she had found her husband first, and after that had meted out a full dose of Mrs. Brennan, on the receipt of this disand after that had meted out a full dose of all the trouble. And her neighbors who know her well, believe that she will do just what she says she will. Johnny's Latest Problem.
